Your two week wait GP urgent referral appointment

Your GP has referred you to see a specialist because they are concerned that you might have cancer.

9 out of 10 people referred to the hospital in this way do not have cancer, however for the small number of people who do, seeing a specialist quickly can mean the cancer is diagnosed early and is more likely to be treated successfully.

This booklet outlines what to expect during this process and where to direct questions you may have.

What happens next?

If your GP hasn't given you a date, the hospital will contact you by telephone or letter to arrange an appointment. If you have not been contacted by the hospital within 48 hours of seeing your GP please contact the Hospital Appointments booking team on: 0300 303 5923

What will happen at my hospital appointment?

The purpose of this appointment is to carry out further investigations and tests to rule out a serious condition. Depending on your symptoms, you may have tests done by a specialist on the same day as your appointment (called a One Stop Clinic or Straight to Test appointment) or you may have a separate hospital appointment before you see the specialist.

You may also be asked to come back for tests on a different day after your initial appointment. Once the initial round of testing has been completed, your specialist will do one of the following:

- Give you the all clear and refer you back to the care of your GP
- Recommend you for further testing
- Diagnose that you have cancer

Government guidelines say that you should have attended your first appointment within 14 days of your initial GP referral and that you should have received one of the above outcomes within 28 days of your initial GP referral. If you feel that your appointments are not meeting these timeliness please discuss this with a member of your hospital team.

It may be helpful for you to record the date that you were first seen and take note of subsequent target dates:

Preparing for your appointment

Please follow the instructions on your appointment letter or discussed on the telephone. If you are having any tests this will include information about how to prepare for them.

You are welcome to bring a family member or friend with you to your appointment, as it may be helpful if you have concerns about understanding what the medical team discusses with you.

It will be helpful for the medical staff if you could write down the symptoms you have been having and any questions that you may have before your appointment. Please also bring a list of any medication you are taking.
